Smart Costumes at Newport

Days of brilliant sunshine inspired the wearers of many lovely costumes at the tennis tournament which attracted Newport society for several days last week. Mrs. Craig Biddle wore a particularly charming gown the first day of the tournament. It was of white English eyelet embroidery, the skirt formed of two flounces. The eyelet embroidery blouse was finished at the neck with a plaited frill of plain white handkerchief linen, and the hat worn with this costume was of fine white chip with half wreath of bright pink roses at the front of the crown. A white fox boa was worn.

Miss Roberta Willard's sports skirt was of white gabardine, and was worn with a wide-brim white felt hat drooped well over the face.

Mrs. Jerome N. Bonaparte wore a gown of palest pink chon, the skirt slightly draped and the overbodice made of heavy ecorse. A black taffeta girdle was worn, and the wide-brim hat was of alternate bands of cream lace insertion and black chiffon.

Mrs. Reginald C. Vanderbilt wore a coat costume of heavy rajah silk in oyster white. The natural color hemp hat was trimmed with a wreath of dull-colored flowers placed flat around the crown, and the wide brim was very drooping.

Mrs. Charles De L. Oelrichs wore a gown of black crepe de chine, the draped skirt pockets lined with purple satin. The shawl ends were lightly embroidered in jet and a white fox scarf concealed the bodice. The hat worn was a large fluted brim of one fine black net trimmed with one American Beauty rose placed on the brim.

Miss Marion Tiffany was gowned in a frock of French gray handkerchief linen, with long skirt pockets, collar and cuffs edged with a band of fine white linen joined to the gray in a scroll design in old blue. A high crowned old blue straw hat was trimmed with a wreath of large petunia pink velvet flowers.

Miss Mabel Gerry was dressed in a handsome gown of beige chiffon, the full skirt having overdraped panels of black net trimmed with bands of black satin. The panels hung straight at each side of the skirt. The bodice was of beige chiffon, with overbodice of black satin and sleeves of net. A rather narrow black straw hat was trimmed with a black bird of paradise plume, that was caught by a blue iridescent feather ornament at the front of the crown.

New York, Aug. 19.—How Charles W. Saacke, wealthy copper man and associate of the late Augustus P. Heine, was found in the bedroom of Mrs. Louise W. Van Loan was told yesterday in papers filed in the Supreme Court by her husband, William W. Van Loan. According to Mr. Van Loan's attorneys, Mr. Saacke is married and has two children.

The alleged intimacy in Mrs. Van Loan's home was preceded, according to Mr. Van Loan, by an ardent courtship of Mrs. Van Loan by Mr. Saacke.

It was in June, 1914, according to the papers, that Mr. Van Loan and five witnesses went to his wife's home, at 212 Dorchester road, Brooklyn. There, he says, after a chase, they cornered Mr. Saacke in a front room, where he had fled from Mrs. Van Loan's bedroom in a state of undress.

His wife was in bed at the time, he said, and when they entered asked him, "What right have you to break into my house?"

"I didn't expect you to send me a card to call," Mr. Van Loan says he answered.

PAPERS PLAN TO CUT SIZE.

Publishers Urge Additional Economy of Space.

New York, Aug. 19.—The board of directors and the paper committee of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association met today and took steps designed to bring about further reduction in the consumption of news print. A telegram was sent to all members:

"Production of news print is at its maximum, and there is no surplus stock on hand.

"The demand will soon increase with no hope in sight of supplying sufficient paper to meet it. Monopolistic prices now prevail and will increase unless demand is immediately reduced to a point well below production.

"The only way to accomplish this is for you and every publisher to drastically economize by reducing the number of pages printed.

"Reductions to be effective must be made immediately. How much will you reduce consumption?"
